Occupational and Environmental Medicine

Adopted as the Journal of the Faculty of Occupational Medicine of the Royal College of Physicians of London

AIMS AND SCOPE

Occupational and Environmental Medicine is a monthly journal concerned with areas of current importance in occupational medicine and environmental health issues throughout the world.

Original contributions include epidemiological, physiological and psychological studies of occupational and environmental health hazards as well as toxicological studies of materials posing human health risks. A CPD/CME series aims to help visitors in continuing their professional development. A correspondence section provides a forum for debate and notification of preliminary findings.
